Strategies for Successful Implementation of Process Analytical Technologies (PAT) in Pharmaceutical Manufacturing

by

Walter Dziki, Ph.D.

ABBOTT LABORATORIES - Chair of the USP Project Team 18 on PAT

(Speaker Abstract waiting for ABBOTT Approval)

PAT has been defined by the FDA as:

Process Analytical Technologies are: systems for analysis and control of manufacturing processes based on timely measurements of critical quality parameters and performance attributes of raw and in-process materials and processes to assure acceptable end product quality at the completion of the process. Process Analytical Technologies involve: optimal applications of process analytical chemistry tools, feedback process control strategies, information management tools, and/or product/process optimization strategies to the manufacture of pharmaceuticals.

The FDA has defined the following as being key aspects of PAT related projects and work:

- Multivariate data acquisition and analysis tools.
- Modern process analyzers or process analytical chemistry tools
- Process and endpoint monitoring and control tools
- Continuous improvement and knowledge management tools

Please make your dinner reservations for the upcoming meeting by using the form on our web page < <http://www.sas-chicago.org/Online%20Registration.htm> > , by email at sas.chicago@bigfoot.com or by calling Mary Kaplar at 708-449-5767.
